ABSTRACT

The data tables and listings in this report provide secondary school dropout data at the state and district levels as a supplement to "Secondary School Completion and Dropouts in Texas Public Schools, 1999-00." This supplement includes annual dropout rates calculated under the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) definition and rates calculated using the Texas accountability definition. Both definitions are explained, and NCES rates for Texas and other states are provided. A district-by-district listing of 1999-2000 annual dropout counts and rates for grades 9 through 12 is also presented. NCES data show that of the 37 states in compliance with its reporting request, the Texas dropout rate of 5%, calculated by the NCES definition, ranked 24th. Under the NCES definition, there were 54,390 dropouts, compared with the 21,439 under the Texas Education Agency accountability definition. The difference in the two ways of counting was greatest at grade 12. (Contains 3 tables, 6 figures, and 12 references.) (SLD)

Highlights

- In the fall of 2001, the Texas Education Agency (TEA) submitted Texas public school 1999-00 dropout data to the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES). The data complied with the NCES dropout definition. In August 2002, NCES (2002c) released the data submitted by 37 states, including the District of Columbia.

- Out of the 37 states in compliance, dropout rates ranged from 2.5 to 9.2 percent. The Texas rate of 5.0 percent ranked 24th.

- The 1999-00 annual dropout rate for Grades 9-12 based on the NCES definition was 5.0 percent, 2.8 times the 1.8 percent rate based on the TEA definition.

- For Grades 9-12, there were 54,390 dropouts under the NCES definition, compared to 21,439 dropouts under the TEA accountability definition – a difference of 32,951 students. The ratio of NCES dropouts to TEA dropouts for Grades 9-12 is 2.5 to 1.

- Under the state definition, the 1999-00 Grade 9-12 annual rate for African American, Hispanic, and White students was 2.6 percent, 2.7 percent, and 1.0 percent, respectively. Under the federal definition, the annual rate for African American, Hispanic, and White students was 6.8 percent, 7.3 percent, and 2.9 percent, respectively.

- The Grade 7-12 rate was 3.5 percent under the NCES dropout definition, compared to 1.3 percent under the TEA definition.

- Under both the TEA and NCES definitions, Grade 9 had the largest number of dropouts, followed by Grade 12.

- The difference between the TEA and NCES dropout counts was greatest for Grade 12.

Secondary School Completion and Dropouts in Texas Public Schools, 1999-00: National Center for Education Statistics State and District Dropout Counts and Rates

Introduction

The data tables and listings in this report provide secondary school dropout data at the state and district levels as a supplement to Secondary School Completion and Dropouts in Texas Public Schools, 1999-00 (Texas Education Agency [TEA], 2001a). This supplement includes annual dropout rates calculated under the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) definition and rates calculated using the Texas accountability definition. A description of the NCES dropout definition and an explanation of the main differences between the NCES and Texas definitions are included. NCES rates for Texas and other states are provided. A district-by-district listing of 1999-00 annual dropout counts and rates for Grades 9-12 is presented (see Table 6, page 19). Listings of other completion and dropout rates based on the Texas definition at the county, district, and campus levels are available in Secondary School Completion and Dropouts in Texas Public Schools, 1999-00: County Listings (TEA, 2001b) and Secondary School Completion and Dropouts in Texas Public Schools, 1999-00: District and Campus Listings (TEA, 2001c).

National Dropout Reporting

The National Center for Education Statistics, "the primary federal entity for collecting, analyzing, and reporting data related to education in the United States," (NCES, 2001, p. i) has been collecting and reporting state-by-state event dropout rates since the 1991-92 school year. NCES reports event dropout rates for states that submit data using consistent data definitions and collection procedures (NCES, 2001, p. 8). NCES requires that data definitions and collection procedures be consistent so rates can be compared across states.

Because the rates are comparable across states, participation in NCES dropout reporting provides an external measure of the performance of a state's school system. Participation in successive years provides a measure of state progress in dropout prevention. A state may find, though, that a dropout definition developed to meet state reporting needs and the data collection procedures developed to support the state definition differ from the national definition and procedures. For example, in 1998-99, 48 states and the District of Columbia submitted dropout data to NCES, but NCES found the dropout data of only 36 states and the District of Columbia to be in compliance for publication (NCES, 2001, p. 59).

Texas began collecting school district dropout data before the NCES national definition was established (TEA, 1989). In addition, the annual dropout rate is an integral part of the Texas public school accountability system. The dropout rate has features that are directly related to its role as one of two base indicators in a high-stakes accountability system. The accountability dropout definition was developed with the advice of educators from across the state and represents their assessment of the definition most suitable to the accountability system of a large state with a diverse student population and a diversity of district types. The dropout data collected are one part of a comprehensive state public education data collection system and are subject to the procedures that govern the data collection system as a whole. These definitional and procedural differences, taken together, were such that NCES determined that Texas would need to recalculate dropout counts for publication by NCES.

A study conducted for the 76th Texas Legislature by the Legislative Budget Board (LBB), State Auditor's Office, and TEA recommended that TEA prepare and submit data to NCES in compliance with the national dropout definition (LBB, 2000). The report noted that the NCES rate would not only be comparable to other state dropout rates; it would also be an independent assessment of Texas progress on dropouts. TEA has prepared and published an increasing number and variety of dropout measures over the years; preparing and submitting data to NCES is the most recent example of this.

To comply with the recommendation and avoid additional reporting requirements for the districts, the agency developed a method of calculating NCES dropout counts based on existing Public Education Information Management System (PEIMS) data. The results for 1999-00 were submitted to NCES and are published in this supplement.

Two sets of annual dropout rates using the state definition of a dropout are published by TEA: one for Grades 7-12 and one for Grades 9-12. The TEA Grade 7-12 annual dropout rate is a base indicator in the accountability system. Grade 7-12 annual dropout rates are published for all districts and campuses with any grade levels between Grade 7 and Grade 12, inclusive, and for the state. The rates appear in TEA publications such as Academic Excellence Indicator System (AEIS) reports, School Report Cards, Snapshot, annual reports to the legislature, and annual high school completion and dropout reports.

TEA Grade 9-12 annual dropout rates are published in the annual completion and dropout report for all districts with any grade levels between Grade 9 and Grade 12, inclusive, and for the state. NCES publishes Grade 9-12 state and district annual dropout rates, although states report Grade 7 and Grade 8 dropouts in their data submissions to NCES. To facilitate comparisons between the TEA Grade 9-12 annual dropout rates and the NCES annual dropout rates, the agency will continue its policy of publishing detailed descriptions of the dropout definitions, procedures, and calculations that apply to each rate.

Rate Calculations

The dropout rate published by TEA most comparable to the NCES event rate is the Grades 9-12 annual dropout rate. Both of these rates measure the percentage of students who dropped out of Grades 9-12 during the 1999-00 school year. The rates differ in their definitions of dropouts in the numerators and total students in the denominators:

$$\text{TEA annual dropout rate} = \frac{\text{number of dropouts during the school year}}{\text{number of students served during the school year}} \times 100$$

Dropouts are defined and counted as per 1999-2000 Public Education Information Management System Data Standards (TEA, 1999), the 2000-2001 Public Education Information Management System Data Standards (TEA, 2000), the 2001 Accountability Manual (TEA, 2001d), and Secondary School Completion and Dropouts in Texas Public Schools, 1999-00 (TEA, 2001a). The total number of students in the denominator is the cumulative number of students in attendance at any time during the school year.

The event dropout rate used by NCES is the percentage of students who dropped out of Grades 9-12 during the 1999-00 school year:

$$\text{NCES event dropout rate} = \frac{\text{number of dropouts during the school year}}{\text{number of students enrolled on October 1 of the school year}} \times 100$$

Dropouts are defined and counted as per Dropout Rates in the United States: 2000 (NCES, 2001). Some states use dates other than October 1 for enrollment counts. In Texas, the total number of students in the denominator is the number of students enrolled in the district on the last Friday in October. All data used in this report were collected and reported by Texas school districts and charter schools through PEIMS, which is maintained by the TEA.

Dropout Counts and Procedures

The TEA and NCES dropout counts and procedures differ in several respects, including: the assignment of summer dropouts to school years and grades; the situations treated as high school completion; the situations when school leavers are considered to be continuing high school elsewhere; when dropouts are excluded from the dropout count; how duplicate, erroneous, and indeterminate records are handled; and the conditions under which students are considered re-enrolled in the fall (see Table 1 on page 6).

The definition of a dropout used by NCES (2001, pp. 59-60) includes all individuals who were enrolled in school at some time during the previous school year, were not enrolled at the beginning of the current school year, have not graduated from high school or completed a state- or district-approved education program, and who do not meet any of the following exclusionary conditions:

- transferred to another public school district;
- transferred to a private school;
- transferred to a state- or district-approved education program;
- were temporarily absent due to suspension or enrollment in a school-approved education program; or
- died.

An individual is considered to have graduated from high school or completed a state- or district-approved education program, including special education and district- or state-sponsored General Educational Development (GED) preparation, upon receipt of formal recognition from school authorities.

All official dropouts under the Texas accountability definition of dropouts are considered dropouts under the NCES definition. But, there are differences in the ways NCES and TEA attribute students who complete a school year but do not return, or "summer dropouts." NCES attributes a summer dropout to the count of the year and grade in which he or she fails to enroll. TEA, on the other hand, adds a summer dropout to the count of the year and grade level completed. In 1999-00, for example, there were 21,439 official TEA dropouts in Grades 9-12 (see Figure 1 on page 7). The 7,412 students who dropped out in the summer following the 1999-00 school year are removed from the NCES count and replaced with the 9,385 students who dropped out in the summer before the 1999-00 school year. Thus, there are 23,412 official dropouts in the NCES dropout count. All of the calculations described in this section require adjustments like this for summer dropouts. This difference must be taken into account in each adjustment that is made to reconcile the TEA and NCES counts.

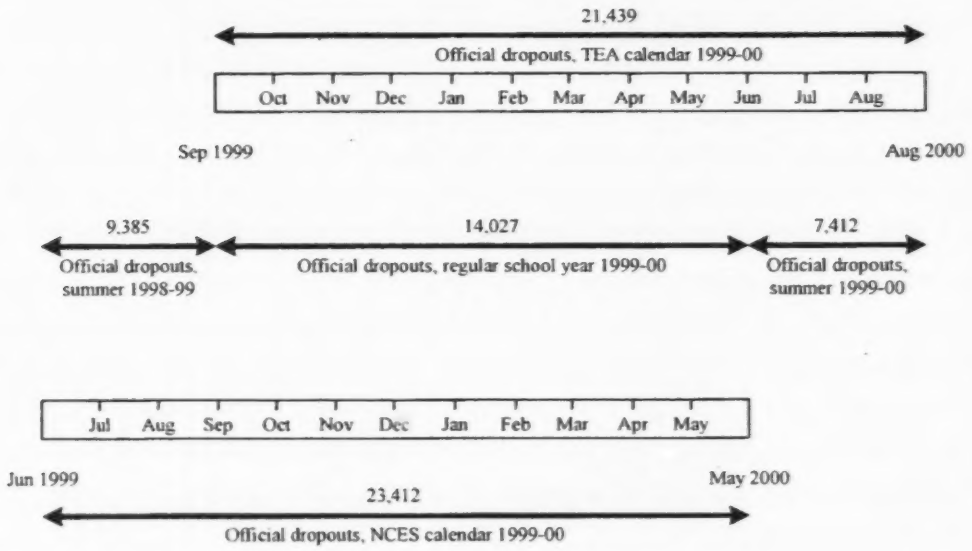
There are five groups of students counted as dropouts by NCES that are not counted as dropouts by TEA:

- a student who withdraws to enroll in an approved adult education GED preparation program;
- a senior who meets all graduation requirements but does not pass the exit-level Texas Assessment of Academic Skills (TAAS);
- a student previously counted as a dropout;
- a student enrolled in school but not eligible for state Foundation School Program funding; and
- a dropout for whom the last district of attendance cannot be determined.

Table 1. "Dropouts" as Defined by the Texas Education Agency (TEA) and the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES)

Texas Education Agency	National Center for Education Statistics
Definition TEA and NCES both define a dropout as a student who is enrolled in school at some time during the school year but either: leaves school during the school year without an approved excuse; or completes the school year and does not return the following year.
Leavers not considered dropouts A student who leaves school for one of the following reasons is not considered a dropout by TEA or NCES: • graduates; • transfers to, or withdraws with intent to transfer to, a public or private school; • is being home schooled; • enrolls in college; or • dies.
A student who leaves school for one of the following reasons is not considered a dropout by TEA: • receives a General Educational Development (GED) certificate by March 1 the following year; • enrolls in an approved adult education GED preparation program; or • meets all graduation requirements but does not pass the exit-level Texas Assessment of Academic Skills (TAAS).	A student who leaves school for one of the following reasons is not considered a dropout by NCES: • receives a GED certificate by the last Friday in October the following year.
Dropouts excluded from the dropout count Dropouts excluded from TEA counts include: • students who were previously counted as dropouts; • students who are not eligible for state funding; and • students who are reported as dropouts by more than one district and whose last district of attendance cannot be determined.
Returning students Returning students are those who enroll at any time before the third week of January of the next school year.	Except for migrant students, returning students are those enrolled on the last Friday in October of the next school year.
Summer dropouts Summer dropouts are added to the counts of the school years and grade levels completed.	Summer dropouts are added to the counts of the school years and grade levels in which they fail to enroll.
Denominator Cumulative attendance is used as the denominator in dropout rate calculations.	Fall enrollment is used as the denominator in dropout rate calculations.

Figure 1. Attribution of Summer Dropouts for Grades 9-12 by the Texas Education Agency (TEA) and the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES)



A large numerical difference is attributable to the count of students who withdraw to enroll in approved adult education GED preparation programs. TEA treats these students as continuing their high school programs and counts them as "other leavers" rather than dropouts. NCES treats them as dropouts unless they obtain their GED certifications by the first day of school the following year. Over 15,000 students were added to the NCES 1999-00 dropout count for this reason (see Table 2 on page 9). There were 2,120 students who had completed their course requirements but had not been awarded diplomas because they had not yet passed the exit-level TAAS. NCES considers these students to be dropouts because they have not received their diplomas. In accordance with legislative intent, TEA counts these students as "other leavers."

Three other groups of students are reported to TEA as dropouts but are removed from the counts of official dropouts for accountability purposes. Students who have dropped out in the past are much more likely to drop out than are students who have not. To avoid penalizing districts in the accountability system for encouraging dropouts to return to school, repeat dropouts are excluded from the counts used for accountability. Students for whom districts had received no state funding are also excluded. Dropouts are also excluded from district counts when the district to be held accountable cannot be determined unambiguously. Together, these three groups accounted for 1,619 NCES dropouts in 1999-00.

A large numerical difference occurs because NCES and TEA set different conditions for considering students to have re-enrolled in the fall. For purposes of the NCES dropout count:

- the school year is the 12-month period of time from the first day of school; and
- an individual not accounted for on the first day of school is considered a dropout.

States are asked to report on an October through September reporting cycle. For many states on this reporting cycle, the first day of school is operationally set as October 1; but for TEA data submissions to NCES, the date is the last Friday in October. Except for migrant students, NCES considers only students enrolled effective the day established as the first day of school to have re-enrolled for the school year. TEA, on the other hand, considers all students enrolled at any time before mid- to late-January to have re-enrolled for the school year. Having a single day instead of five months for counting students as having returned to school makes a substantial difference in the NCES dropout counts. Over 10,000 students were added to the NCES 1999-00 dropout count for this reason (Table 2). Similarly, TEA counts as GED recipients all students who receive GED certificates by March 1 of the next school year. NCES counts as GED recipients students who receive GED certificates before the last Friday in October of the next school year. Nearly 600 students who received their GED certificates between the last Friday in October 2000 and March 1, 2001 were added to the NCES dropout count.

In the 1999-00 NCES Grade 9-12 dropout count for Texas, 43.0 percent of the 54,390 dropouts are also dropouts in the state system (Figure 2). The greatest difference between the NCES and TEA counts is in the 15,564 students entering GED programs. These students account for 28.6 percent of the NCES dropout count. Another significant difference is in the date by which students must return to school or receive their GED credentials. For this reason, there are 11,675 students (21.5%) included in the NCES dropout count but not in the TEA dropout count.

Note. TEA = Texas Education Agency. GED = General Educational Development. TAAS = Texas Assessment of Academic Skills.

Additional Adjustments to District and Grade-Level Counts

As noted, NCES attributes a summer dropout to the count of the year and grade in which he or she fails to enroll, whereas TEA attributes a summer dropout to the count of the year and grade level completed. The NCES approach tends to "move" dropouts from Grade 11 to Grade 12, and from Grade 9 to Grade 10 (see Table 3 on page 11). This means that NCES Grade 12 dropout rates are likely to be disproportionately larger than the other grades. The NCES approach also requires that a student who drops out during the summer in which he or she is in transition between districts must be attributed to the district in which fall enrollment is expected.

(1) Summer Dropouts. Students who completed the 1998-99 school year but were not enrolled on the last Friday in October the following fall are counted as 1999-00 dropouts under the NCES definition. These dropouts would be considered 1998-99 dropouts under the Texas definition.

(2) Regular School Year Dropouts. Students who left school before the end of the 1999-00 school year and were not enrolled on the last Friday in October the following fall are 1999-00 dropouts for both NCES and TEA.

(3) Total Number. NCES totals include summer dropouts from the TEA 1998-99 dropout year plus regular school year dropouts from the TEA 1999-00 dropout year.

(4) Total Percent. This is the percentage each source of dropouts represents of the total count of NCES dropouts.

(5) TEA Official Dropouts. All students who are dropouts under the TEA definition are also dropouts under the NCES definition.

(6) Leavers Not Considered Dropouts. There are two categories of students reported to TEA as school leavers considered dropouts under the NCES definition but not under the Texas definition: (1) students who enter GED preparation programs, and (2) students who complete all graduation requirements and fail the exit-level TAAS.

(7) Dropouts Excluded from the Dropout Count. After TEA receives the final Public Education Information Management System (PEIMS) data submission, an automated statewide search of other data files is conducted to determine if any students reported as dropouts appear elsewhere as non-dropouts. For example, a reported dropout found to have received a GED or to have enrolled elsewhere is removed from the dropout count.

(7A) Different Definitions. NCES does not accept all TEA exclusion reasons, and some students reported as dropouts but removed from the TEA count are added to the NCES dropout count: (1) repeat dropouts – students who were counted as dropouts in a previous year, returned to school, and dropped out again; (2) students not eligible for state Foundation School Program funding such as students who were served less than two hours of instruction per day; and (3) students for whom dropout records were submitted by more than one district (under the TEA definition, a student can only be counted as a dropout once in any school year).

(7B) Different Dates for Returning Students. Even for exclusions allowed under both the NCES and TEA definitions, counts may differ because of different return dates. Because the return date differs between the two systems, some students reported as dropouts but removed from the TEA count are added to the NCES dropout count: (1) students who receive their GED certificates after the last Friday in October; and (2) students who return to school the following fall but are not enrolled on the last Friday in October.

(8) Returning Students. Neither TEA nor NCES counts students who return to school in the fall as dropouts. Nevertheless, TEA and NCES have different procedures for determining who has returned to school. TEA dropout procedures treat students enrolled at any time through the end of January as having returned. Because these students have returned to school, districts are not required to report them as dropouts or other leavers. NCES considers only those students enrolled on the day designated as the beginning of the school year as having returned. This excludes: (1) students who return and leave before the end of October; and (2) students who return between the end of October and the end of January. Students not enrolled on the day designated as the beginning of the school year must be added to calculate NCES dropouts, except for those found to be enrolled elsewhere or to have graduated or completed a GED.

Texas Public School State Rates

The 1999-00 Grades 9-12 annual dropout rate for Texas public schools under the national definition was 5.0 percent (Table 3). The rate under the state definition was 1.8 percent. The NCES rate was 2.8 times the comparable TEA rate. For Grades 9-12, there were 54,390 dropouts under the NCES definition, compared to 21,439 dropouts under the TEA accountability definition – a difference of 32,951 students. The ratio of NCES dropouts to TEA dropouts for Grades 9-12 is 2.5 to 1.

NCES uses fall enrollment to calculate the dropout rate rather than the cumulative attendance used by TEA. This contributes to the higher dropout rate because fall enrollment is smaller than cumulative attendance, which includes all students enrolled at any time during the school year. Fall enrollment includes 1,088,428 students in Grades 9-12 while cumulative attendance includes 1,163,883 students, a difference of 75,455 students.

Under the state definition, the 1999-00 Grade 9-12 annual rate for African American, Hispanic, and White students was 2.6 percent, 2.7 percent, and 1.0 percent, respectively. Under the federal definition, the annual rate for African American, Hispanic, and White students was 6.8 percent, 7.3 percent, and 2.9 percent, respectively. The differences between TEA and NCES Grade 9-12 dropout counts vary slightly by ethnic group. The difference is largest for Asian/Pacific Islanders, with 2.8 times as many NCES dropouts as TEA dropouts. The difference is smallest for African Americans, with 2.4 times as many NCES dropouts as TEA dropouts.

The Grade 7-12 rate was 3.5 percent under the NCES dropout definition, compared to 1.3 percent under the TEA definition. Under the NCES dropout definition, 58,816 students in Grades 7-12 dropped out of Texas public schools in 1999-00, compared to 23,457 students under the TEA accountability definition – a difference of 35,359 students. The ratio of NCES dropouts to TEA dropouts for Grades 7-12 is 2.5 to 1.

Under both the TEA and NCES definitions, Grade 9 had the largest number of dropouts, followed by Grade 12 (Table 3). The difference between the TEA and NCES dropout counts is greatest for Grade 12. Several leaver categories that are dropouts under the NCES definition include a disproportionate number of Grade 12 students:

- students who fail the exit-level TAAS but meet all other graduation requirements (all Grade 12);
- students who receive GED certificates between the last Friday in October and March 1 of the school year after they drop out;
- students who leave school to enter adult education GED preparation programs; and
- summer dropouts from Grade 11 are added to the Grade 12 count, which also contains Grade 12 summer dropouts.

The difference between dropout counts is also large for Grade 10, in part because the number of summer dropouts added to Grade 11 from Grade 10 is much smaller than the number added from Grade 9 to Grade 10.

There were 985 districts with NCES dropouts in Grades 7-12, compared to 810 districts with TEA dropouts. All TEA official dropouts are also dropouts under the NCES definition. Because the NCES calendar differs from the TEA calendar, NCES dropouts come from two TEA dropout years. Consequently, there were 6 districts with TEA dropouts but no NCES dropouts and 38 districts in which the TEA dropout count was higher than the NCES dropout count. In 707 (88%) of the 804 districts with both TEA and NCES dropout counts, the NCES dropout count was higher.

Rates for Participating States

NCES released the Grade 9-12 dropout rates for the 37 participating states, including the District of Columbia, in August 2002 (NCES, 2002c). The rates ranked from 2.5 percent in Iowa to 9.2 percent in Louisiana. Texas, at 5.0 percent, ranked 24th out of the 37, along with Kentucky and Ohio.

[1]This state reported on an alternative July through June cycle rather than the specified October through September cycle.
[2]Oregon dropout counts erroneously included students that were completers; these students account for approximately 0.2 percent of Oregon's dropout counts.

Notes on Table 6

Beginning of the school year
The Texas Education Agency (TEA) designates the last Friday in October as the date on which static fall enrollment counts are made. The National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) procedures treat this day as the beginning of the school year.

TEA official dropouts
This is the count of official dropouts in Grades 9-12 in 1999-00 based on the Texas definition. The count includes students who drop out between the beginning of the school year in 1999 and the beginning of the school year in 2000. This dropout count is the numerator of the dropout rate used in the accountability ratings.

TEA students
This is the cumulative attendance of all students in Grades 9-12 for the 1999-00 school year. This count is the denominator of the TEA dropout rate.

TEA rate (%)
This is the TEA Grade 9-12 annual dropout rate for 1999-00.

Summer dropouts 1999-00
Dropouts who leave school after completing the 1999-00 school year are included in the TEA dropout count in 1999-00 but are included in the NCES dropout count in 2000-01. These dropouts are subtracted to calculate the NCES 1999-00 dropout count.

Summer dropouts 1998-99
Dropouts who leave school after completing the 1998-99 school year are included in the TEA dropout count in 1998-99 but are included in the NCES dropout count in 1999-00. These dropouts are added to calculate the NCES 1999-00 dropout count.

Other leavers
There are two categories of students reported to TEA as school leavers considered dropouts under the NCES definition but not under the Texas definition:

1. students who enter General Educational Development (GED) preparation programs; and
2. students who complete all graduation requirements and fail the exit-level Texas Assessment of Academic Skills (TAAS).

These counts are added to calculate NCES dropouts. Counts come from the 1999-00 school year and summer of the 1998-99 TEA reporting year.

Reconciled reported dropouts
After TEA receives the final Public Education Information Management System (PEIMS) Submission 1, an automated search is conducted to determine if students reported as dropouts appear in other data files that indicate that the students are not dropouts under the TEA definition. Records that can be reconciled with records in other files are removed from the TEA dropout count. Exclusions under the NCES definition are not identical to exclusions under the TEA definition. In cases where the NCES definition does not allow the removal of the students from the counts, the records removed from the TEA count must be added back to the NCES count. The following counts must be added to calculate NCES dropouts:

1. previous dropout: students counted as dropouts in previous years;
2. ineligible for funding: students not eligible for state Foundation School Programs (FSP) funding;
3. duplicate records: students for whom dropout records are submitted by more than one district; and
4. later GED: students who receive their GED certification after the beginning of the school year;
5. enrolled earlier or later: students who return in the fall but are not enrolled on the date fall enrollment is counted.

Counts come from the 1999-00 school year and summer of the 1998-99 TEA reporting year.

Returning students
Neither TEA nor NCES counts students who return to school in the fall as dropouts. Nevertheless, TEA and NCES have different procedures for determining who has returned to school. TEA dropout procedures treat students enrolled at any time through the end of January as having returned. Because these students have returned to school, districts are not required to report them as dropouts or other leavers. NCES considers only those students enrolled on the day designated as the beginning of the school year as having returned. This excludes:

1. students who return and leave before the end of October; and
2. students who return between the end of October and the end of January.

Students not enrolled on the day designated as the beginning of the school year must be added to calculate NCES dropouts, except for those found to be enrolled elsewhere or to have graduated or completed a GED. Counts come from the 1999-00 school year and summer of the 1998-99 TEA reporting year.

NCES dropouts
This is the count of dropouts in Grades 9-12 in 1999-00 based on the NCES definition. The count includes students who drop out between the end of the 1998-99 school year and the end of the 1999-00 school year.

NCES students
This is the denominator of the NCES dropout rate. The NCES definition uses enrollment on the date fall enrollment is counted.

NCES rate (%)
This is the NCES Grade 9-12 event dropout rate for 1999-00.
